

Abstract : In this seminar, we show how binary encoding is advantageously leveraged to accelerate arithmetic computations, enhance resilience against side-channel attacks, and reduce memory consumption in cryptographic applications. These benefits will be illustrated using elliptic curve cryptography, with a focus on its applications in digital signatures and image encryption."